Fuller's London Pride, Brewster's Marquis, Exmoor Gold

The Red Lion Inn lies at the heart of the village of Stathern and the emphasis here is firmly on food; ingredients are locally sourced, the menus change everyday according to what produce is fresh in - and a map provided on their reverse shows exactly where and from whom the ingredients for your dishes have come. Lunch might see ox tongue terrine or eggs Benedict on offer, while dinner might include pigeon breast or smoked haddock. A good value set menu is available at lunch but booking is essential whenever you wish to eat. Saturdays in the summer months mean barbeques and Pimms on the terrace; in winter, a fireside seat has to be best. Taken a liking to your chair? Chances are it's for sale, as are many of the pieces of furniture and pictures on the walls - ask a member of staff - prices are negotiable. Home made preserves are also for sale too, plus a cookbook from its sister pub, the Olive Branch at Clipsham.
